TRAGEDY IN GEORGIA. The telegraph several days since announced the killing of the Acting English Consul, E. G. Westmoreland, at Brunswick, Ga., on Friday week. From our Georgia exchanges

we give the full particulars of the lamentable tragedy. Westmoreland, during the war, was engaged in blockade running, gaining considerable reputation and wealth. In 1865 he setrled in Brunswick, Ga., and formed a co-partnership with General Gordon, and conducted an extensive saw mill business. Through some mismanagement or misunderstanding Westmoreland retired from the firm, andafterwards was residing in the city, acting as English Coasul there. Here he contracted the acquaintance of a young and beautiful lady, the daughter of a prominent and respectable citizen, whom he afterwards addressed. At the time of the Englishman's visits she was visited by a young man named Captain E. J. Martin. Westmoreland continued his attentions, which were encouraged by the young lady, and in due time proposed and was accepted, much against the parents' wishes, it is said. During the attentions of the young men to the young lady, which were most assiduous on both sides, a coolness and reserve sprung up between them. Previous to this circumstance they were apparent-scending the steps of a neighbor's house where he had been visiting. Not noticing Westmoreland, the latter called out to him, "Hold up, Martin, I'll walk down with you." Not answering the request, Westmoreland repeated it, when Martin turned towards him and said:

"I don't wish your company, sir," or words of similar import, and quietly walked on, as if feeling insulted. Westmoreland challenged stricle is manufactured by the same house, and Martin, who immediately accepted. Being detained some hours beyond her time, she did superphosphate yet offered to the farmer, posnot arrive till late, during which delay the seconds and friends of both parties adjusted the difficulty by inducing Westmoreland to withdraw the challenge, and Martin his The rivals, however, maintained their coolness, and were not on speaking terms. Westmoreland continued his attentions to the young lady and Martin his visits to the house. On Friday last, about 11 o'clock, a. m., Westmoreland and the young lady were married .--After a short time spent in the usual congratulations on such occasions, the young bride and husband proceeded to the office of the latter, and began making preparations for the bridal tour. While awaiting the arrival of the Sylvan Shore, Westmoreland, in his shirt-sleeves and stocking feet, was sitting on the office steps conversing with Judge Marlin. While thus engaged, Martin came up the street, and walking directly in front of Westmoreland, drew a small pistol, and without a word of explanation fired at him, the ball striking him in the groin. Westmoreland immediately sprang to his feet, when Martin fired again, the ball taking effect in the centre of the breast. Westmoreland advanced towards Martin, and seizing him by the arm said: "Martin, what have I done to you that you shot me?" and began sinking to the ground. A soldier passing at the time wrung the pistol from Martin's hand, and with the other arm not utter a word after he fell, and died in about fifteen minutes. Martin made no attempt to escape, and surrendering to a squad of soldiers he was marched to his room in the hotel until his arrest under a warrant issued by Judge his arrest under a warrant issued by Judge

A large crowd of outsiders gathered around the hotel, and there were loud threats of violence-indeed, so incensed were the people, that the authorities sent the prisoner to Sa-

Captain Martin is a young man of fine personal appearance, good education, and of great determination and bravery. He served on the staff of General Johnson in Virginia, under General Longstreet. He is the owner of a large rice plantation on the Alamaha river, which he was cultivating at the time the murder was committed. His friends contend that other motives, more aggravated than jealousy, prompted the commission of the deed, and that transactions of a personal nature, committed after the settlement of the duel, were in themselves sufficient to account for the act.

CURE FOR NEURALGIA. - We have, if we mistake not, ready published the following recipe. We have, says the Harrisburg Union, heard it highly recommended, and it will do no harm to again pullish it:

"Take two large tablespoonsful of cologne, two tablespoonsful of fine salt, and mix them together in a small bottle; every time you have any acute affection of the nerves or neuralgia simply breathe the fumes in your nose from the bottle, and you will be immediately relieved."

MEDICAL. DEPARATOR CAPILLI.

REPARATOR CAPILLI, For restoring hair upon bald heads (from whatever cause it may have fallen out) and forcing a growth of hair upon the face, it has no equal. It will force the beard to grow upon the smoothest face in from five to eight weeks, or hair upon bald heads in from two to three months A few ignorant practitioners have asserted that there is nothing that will force or hasten the growth of the hair or beard. Their assertions are false, as thousands of living witnesses (from their own experience) can bear witness. But many will say, how are we to distinguish the genuine from the spurious? It certa nly is difficult, as nine-tenths of the different preparations advertised for the hair and beard are entirely worthless, and you may have already thrown away large amounts in their purchase. To such we would say, try the Reparator Capilli; it will cost you nothing unless t fully comes up to our representations. If your druggist does not keep t, send us $1, and receipt for the money, which will be returned you on application, providing entire satisfaction His TIN WARE will is not given. Address W. L.
